About Awards:

The European Awards have been existing for nearly 8 years. However over the last three years we have changed our methodology of how we run the awards program, due to two main reasons. This includes our syndicated news partnership with Thomson Reuters and the publication being audited by The Professional Publishing Association (PPA).

The Awards Panel itself is made up of former fortune 500 individuals, global experts and industry leaders. The names of the individuals responsible for the decision making are undisclosed. This is to mitigate any risk and direct contact due to data protection and the risk of any judicial prejudiced. However to give you a sense of the level of authority and caliber of these governing bodies, some of our current contributors include the likes of Richard Barkham, Chief Economist at CBRE, Gus Schellekens COO Sustainability at PWC and Karen Penney Vice President at American Express UK.

About The European:

The European has a distribution network that includes some of the most senior decision makers around the world, the details of whom we have sourced from the most reliable data and news agencies worldwide. We are a syndicated news partner of Thomson Reuters and we are committed to the very highest level of journalism, bringing together the collective thinking of the most respected business personalities of our time.

In addition to the independent consumer audience, the magazine has the readership of over 150,000 around the world, such as high net worth entrepreneurs and board level directors including hedge fund managers, institutional investors, ESG investors, senior banking executives, senior legal advocates, commercial and residential property investors, brokers, active futures traders, family offices, chief investment officers, system traders, chief information officers, senior financial traders, asset managers, commodity brokers, investment relations managers, private wealth managers, trust and fiduciary managers, private equity managers, and chief executive officers from public and private companies.
